XV PRICES OF BANKING SERVICES – INTEREST RATES AND FEES

The amount of interest rates and amounts of fees and commissions for all banking activities or services performed are specified in the Catalog and tariff of the products and services of Yettel Bank AD Belgrade for legal entities and entrepreneurs.

The amount, character (variability) and the period in which the Bank's service price is related - interest and fees, method, dynamics and terms of calculation, as well as the dynamics and deadlines for charging the prices are specified in the Catalog and tariff of the products and services of Yettel Bank AD Belgrade for legal entities and entrepreneurs, and the Agreement between the Bank and the Client.

The contract also specifies the calculation of interest for untimely settlement of liabilities (default interest), the possibility of early repayment of loans, early repayment costs as well as the deadlines and ways of regulating premature repayment of a part or a whole loan.

Nominal interest rate

Nominal interest rates are determined within the price regulations and product catalogs for each segment of the bank's operations with micro clients and legal entities. Interest is calculated using a conformal or proportional method. The method of calculation is defined in the Contract.

Nominal interest rates are expressed in percentages with two decimal places annually. The annual interest rate includes a period of 360/365/366 calendar days, and a monthly period from the number of days in the month for which the interest is calculated.

The nominal interest rate can be unique or composite.

The unique nominal interest rate is expressed in a certain percentage amount. The composite nominal interest rate consists of two elements: interest rate referents (EURIBOR, LIBOR, BELIBOR, referent interest rate of the National Bank of Serbia) and margins.

The Bank shall contract a clause on the variability of a single interest rate or margin at a composite interest rate.

The mentioned variation clause allows the Bank to, in exceptional cases, lead to significant changes in the market, and according to business policy decisions, these interest rates are corrected at higher or lower levels.

Exceptional cases that lead to significant market changes can be:

- a. change in the price of the source of funds from which the Bank is financed by the financier of the Bank,
- b. change of legal regulations or acts of the NBS,
- c. a change in the situation in a country that leads to a change in the country's risk assessment (rating) and affects positively or negatively at the cost of the financial resources offered by foreign financiers to the Bank,
- d. liquidity and general creditworthiness of economic entities that are clients of the Bank and which affects the price of risk of placement,
- e. changing the trend of competition.

Notwithstanding the aforementioned reasons, the Bank reserves the right to change the agreed interest rate with all beneficiaries, in case of unintentional use of the placed funds, not compliance with the provisions of the Agreement that regulate the envisaged volume of payment transactions, increase the risk of placement due to changes in the liquidity and creditworthiness of the client and other provisions of the Agreement.

Variable components of the composite interest rate can be negotiated by linking the interest rate for EURIBOR, EONIA, LIBOR, the reference interest rate of the National Bank of Serbia, the interest rate on the deposit facilities of the National Bank of Serbia, BELIBOR, BEONIA. Thereby:

- a. EURIBOR is the interbank reference interest rate applied in the euro zone. It is established by the European Banking Federation and the Association for Financial Markets. It is calculated as the average of interest rates within the panel of first-rate banks offering funds for a certain period, and publishes every working day in Brussels and applies two working days from the date of publication. Depending on the maturity of the offered funds, the weekly, two-week, three-week, monthly, three-month, six-month, etc. are different. EURIBOR. The frequency of the change (updating) of this interest rate determines the frequency of the change in the total nominal interest rate.
- b. EONIA (Euro Overnight Index Average) is the overnight interest rate for euros calculated as the weighted average of all overnight lending on the interbank market by the banks of the Euro Zone.
- c. LIBOR is the daily base rate based on interest rates offered by banks for lending to other banks in the London banking money market. The frequency of the change (updating) of this interest rate determines the frequency of the change in the total nominal interest rate.
- d. The reference interest rate of the National Bank of Serbia is the starting interest rate on the basis of which the interest rates for money market operations are determined. It is the highest, ie the lowest interest rate applied by the National Bank of Serbia in the process of conducting repurchase transactions, ie the purchase of securities with a maturity of 12 to 16 days. The change of this interest rate is performed by the National Bank of Serbia, the intervals are neither determined nor determined. The published reference rate of the National Bank of Serbia remains valid until the next official change.

- e. The interest rate on the deposit facilities of the National Bank of Serbia is overnight interest rate for the deposit of surplus liquid assets of banks with the National Bank of Serbia.
- f. BELIBOR (Belgrade Interbank Offered Rate) is the reference interest rate for dinar funds offered by Panel banks in the Serbian interbank market. It is calculated as the arithmetic mean of the quotation of the remaining after eliminating the highest and the lowest rate, with two decimal places. Depending on the maturity of the offered funds, the weekly, two-week, monthly, two-month, three-month, and six-month BELIBOR.
- g. BEONIA (Belgrade Overnight Index Average) is the effective overnight rate calculated as the weighted average of all overnight lending in the Serbian interbank market, which were placed by Panela banks, including placements with other banks outside Panel.

The amount of the interest rate is fixed at a fixed percentage, or in the sum of the reference interest rate (LIBOR / BELIBOR / EURIBOR, etc.) and a certain percentage (margin).

If the nominal interest rate is expressed through two components, the reference interest rate and the margin, the adjustment is made in accordance with changes in the reference interest rate, in a manner regulated by a contract concluded with the client.

Nominal interest rates are expressed in percentages with two decimal places at the monthly or annual level. The annual interest rate is 365 calendar days, and the monthly period is the number of days in the month for which the interest is calculated.

Effective interest rate

In accordance with the regulations of the National Bank of Serbia regarding the calculation and presentation of the effective interest rate, the Bank calculates and announces interest rates and other costs of banking services in a unique manner.

The effective interest rate is the decoupling rate that is calculated on an annual basis.

The cash deposit of the deposit (cash flows of the deposit) includes the calculation of the effective interest rate on loans that are approved with deposit taking. The effective interest rate is expressed in percentages with two decimal places, with the rounding off of the second decile, and is valid from the date of calculation.

If the effective interest rate changes due to changes in the elements on the basis of which it is accounted for, and what is the impact on the loan in use or the deposit, the bank shall notify the Client of that change.

The new loan repayment plan / deposit plan is formed with the balance of the loan / deposit from the moment of the beginning of the application of the changed element of the effective interest rate to the day of repayment of the loan / payment of the deposit in accordance with the contract

Fees, provisions, penalty interest and tax fees

The Bank calculates and charges fees for services rendered to the Bank's clients. The fee is the price of the banking service determined in a fixed and / or a percentage, while the commission is determined in the relative amount in relation to the basic banking service.

Fees may be one-off or periodic. Periodic fees are variable, which means that in exceptional cases that lead to significant changes in the market, and according to business policy decisions, these rates can be adjusted to more or less. Exceptional cases that lead to significant market changes can be:

- a. change in the price of the source of funds from which the Bank is financed by the Bank's financier,
- b. change of legal regulations or acts of the NBS,
- c. a change in the situation in a country that leads to a change in the country's risk assessment (rating) and affects positively or negatively at the cost of the financial resources offered by foreign financiers to the Bank,

The calculated interest / fee is due for payment on the day of the calculation, and the deadline for settlement of the due liability is a tolerant period that cannot be longer than the deadline prescribed by the Contract.

The basis for calculating fees, the method and deadlines for collecting the calculated fees are regulated by the Bank's acts.
